Dale Kaye

Livermore Chamber of Commerce

As head of the Chamber she started the highly successful, Livermore Valley Film Commission which has brought in scores of national and international commercials and also initiated the Chamber's Hispanic Business Council. She has increased the corporate sponsorship program by 150 percent and has seen membership grow, all with the help of her dynamic staff.

Prior to that she was Vice President of Gold'N Hen Productions, a subsidiary of MSI Entertainment, which has offices in New York City and Los Angeles, California. Eldridge Kaye produced Replacing Dad, a movie for CBS, and has developed other projects for the CBS and ABC as well as a feature for Paramount. Before joining Gold'N Hen in 1994, Eldridge Kaye organized and managed Florida's first Film Commission office in Los Angeles. That office, developed at the direction of Gov. Lawton Chiles, marketed the state of Florida as a film location.

Prior to relocating to Los Angeles in 1991, Eldridge Kaye was active in Florida state politics. She was a key player in many political campaigns where she did everything from media strategy to Presidential advance work. She rose through the ranks of Jacksonville City Government to become one of the youngest -- and first female -- division heads. She worked with three mayors and headed the City's Public Relations Department. In that role, Eldridge Kaye helped to create the Jacksonville Jazz Festival, The Florida Film Festival in Jacksonville chaired by Burt Reynolds and the Jacksonville Film Commission. Under her leadership her staff was recognized repeatedly for its excellence in graphics, copywriting, videos and print and television ads. She was the recipient of a national award from PBS for the promotion of the Jacksonville Jazz Festival.
