Tim Sbranti
Mayor, City of Dublin

Tim Sbranti has devoted his life to public service in Dublin as both a teacher and elected official. Sbranti was first elected to City Council in 2002, and was elected Mayor in 2008 and re-elected in 2010. Tim helped to guide the City through some of its most transformative years. He is particularly proud of Dublin's designation by the prestigious National Civic League as an All-American City in 2011.

Tim stepped into the Mayor's office during the worst economic downturn to ever face the City of Dublin since its incorporation, managing to balance the budget without major cuts to programs or services. He worked closely with the City Council and staff to develop several new economic incentive programs which successfully stimulated new business activity. In addition to his leadership on the issue of economic development, Mayor Sbranti is fiercely passionate about improving the City's environmental programs, increasing the City's communication with the public, maintaining Dublin's image as a safe community, improving the City's infrastructure, enhancing Dublin's Parks and Recreational programs and facilities, and building community.

Sbranti grew up in Dublin and returned home after graduating from Sacramento State to teach at his alma mater Dublin High School, where he also serves as the school's Student Activities Director, Varsity Boys Tennis Coach, and Assistant Varsity Boys Basketball Coach. Outside of his professional roles with the City and the School District, Tim is extremely active in the community.

Mayor Sbranti is married to Stephanie, a Livermore native who currently teaches at Valley Continuation High School in Dublin.
