Rob White joined the City of Livermore in June of 2007. His duties include:

- City-wide Business Attraction, Retention, and Growth
- Small Business Assistance and Training
- Workforce Development
- Coordination with Local, Regional, State and Federal Organizations
- Cultural Arts Programs
- Tourism
- Marketing and Outreach

White's background includes work in government revitalizing commercial corridors and former industrial complexes and in business permitting assistance; work in the private sector in large-scale former military base reuse and revitalization; work in the non-profit sector on technology transfer for the Department of Energy and e-commerce assistance to business; as a previous owner of a small consulting business; as a partner in a commercial real estate Limited Liability Corporation; and extensive experience in brownfields and hazardous materials mitigation.

White has a Master's in Planning and Development from the University of Southern California and a Bachelor's in Geology from California State University, Chico. He is also working on a Doctorate in Policy, Planning, and Development at the University of Southern California. He is also a registered Professional Geologist in California and Illinois.

As a former Deputy Director of the Economic Development and Intergovernmental Affairs Department for the County of Sacramento from May 2002 to June 2007, he acted on behalf of the Sacramento County Executive's Office. White was responsible for business permitting assistance, business attraction and retention, military base reuse and redevelopment, and commercial corridor revitalization.
